For example, one review of 16 studies found that the more aerobic exercise people got, the more belly fat they lost. Other studies have found that aerobic exercise can increase muscle mass and decrease belly fat, waist circumference and body fat. Most research recommends between 30-60 minutes of moderate to vigorous exercise weekly, or roughly 20-40 minutes of cardio each day. Running, walking, cycling and swimming are just a few examples of some cardio exercises that can help burn fat and kick-start weight loss.
